Reds Bomb Saigon With U.S. Jets

SAIGON (UPI) —Military sources said jet fighter-bombers captured by the Communists at the height of their offensive bombed Saigon's Tan Son Nhut airbase today in the first such raid of the Vietnam war.

Scores of American-built jet bombers and other planes were captured intact when South Vietnam pulled out of Da Nang and other northern airfields without a fight at start of the Communist offensive. Many pilots chose to flee with their families rather than stay with the planes.

The bombing attacks which brought gunfire throughout Saigon also brought reports of a possible coup against Gen. Duong Van "Big" Minh moments after he had assumed the office of president with a pledge to begin immediate cease-fire talks with the Communists.

It also brought panic and fears of a final assault on Saigon by Communist forces that have reached the suburbs only three miles from the center of the city.

The sources said four A37 Dragonfly jets carried out a bombing mission on the military section of Tan Son Nhut from the Communist-occupied airfield at Phan Rang, 165 miles northeast of Saigon on the coast of the South China Sea.

Pilots of chase planes —F5 Freedom Fighter jets —said the A37s piloted by Communist airmen returned to the coastal city and were seen landing there after the raid.

The attack on Tan Son Nhut touched off explosions which rocked Saigon and heavy bursts of anti-aircraft fire caused 60 minutes of panic in the South Vietnamese capital.

The Viet Cong meanwhile all but rejected Minh's call for an immediate cease-fire, although it had indicated earlier he would be acceptable.

A statement issued by the Viet Cong's Provisional Revolutionary Government in Paris said its two basic conditions must be met before the fighting is halted. These were dismantling of Saigon's war machine and U.S. agreement to respect the fundamental rights of the Vietnamese people.

There was gunfire tonight around the U.S. Embassy in scenes reminiscent of the start of the Communist Tet offensive in 1968. Scattered thunderstorms hit the capital area during the late afternoon, filling the sky with thunder and flashes of lightning that did little to ease the nervousness prevailing in the city.

The bombing was carried out by five A37 Dragonfly jets of the type used by the South Vietnamese Air Force (VNAF), UPI correspondents reported from Tan Son Nhut. Military sources said later they were flown by Communists.

Congress expects to give President Ford evacuation authority this week. Story on page 20

The sources said the air strikes destroyed three F5 Freedom Fighter jets, four C119 Flying Boxcars, three C47 aircraft and a DC3. Casualties could not be determined immediately.

Tracer rounds filled the skies over the Tan Son Nhut area and in the downtown section, where government ships berthed on the Saigon River opened up on the A37s.

Air Force commanders scrambled jets from Tan Son Nhut and the airbase was sealed, halting all flights by U.S. emergency evacuation planes which had been flying thousands of Vietnamese from the country daily.

A C130 Hercules transport plane of the type being used to carry refugees to the Philippines was taking off just as the bombing raid was made. The plane passed over downtown Saigon at a low altitude with its prop-jet engines trailing smoke as if it might have been hit. There was no report of any crash in the area, however.

Viet Cong troops advanced to within three miles of downtown Saigon and fighting raged at the northeast outskirts of the capital near the Newport bridge, located on the American-built highway stretching to Bien Hoa, 14 miles northeast of here.

The Communists fired a salvo of four rockets into the city early today, injuring a child and battering headquarters of the South Vietnamese navy. On Sunday, rocket attacks killed or wounded scores of civilians in Cholon, the city's Chinese quarter. They were the first rocket attacks on Saigon since the Paris peace accords of February 1973.

With the end of Saigon apparently near, the U.S. Embassy announced it was closing the Defense Attache office tonight, ending a quarter century of American military presence in South Vietnam. Only a handful of officers were among the less than 1,000 American still in Saigon.

Bien Hoa, the Military Region III headquarters post, was hit overnight with more than 400 rounds of 130mm artillery and 122mm rockets fire. The base was isolated, military sources said.

All roads leading into Saigon were cut by fighting which trapped tens of thousands of refugees in battlegrounds where they faced crossfire between government forces and Communist troops.

After dark tonight, police trucks with loudspeakers cruised the streets of Saigon urging all residents to return home. "Stay off the streets," the people were warned.

Lt. Gen. Nguyen Van Minh, military commander in the Saigon region, ordered a 24-hour curfew on the city. His edict was broadcast over radio Saigon only 30 minutes before the normal 8 p.m. to 6 a.m. curfew would have gone into effect.

UPI newsmen at the airfield said "many government warplanes" were destroyed or damaged.

The explosions of ammunition and the burning planes blew up were clearly heard five miles away in the downtown area.

South Vietnamese sailors strolling along the Saigon River bank broke into a run for the Navy headquarters as the explosions and gunfire ripped through Saigon.

The streets cleared quickly, as residents rushed for what they hoped was the safety of their homes or other nearby buildings.

UPI correspondent Leon Daniel, who was on downtown Tu Do street when the explosions began, said tension had almost visibly eased after the Minh speech.

"People slammed on the brakes of their cars and leaped toward any available cover," Daniel said.

"I saw soldiers firing small arms into the air at a transport plane. People on the street screamed. A 20 mm cannon began firing from a ship parked in the Saigon River.

"The streets emptied quickly as darkness approached." Communist soldiers had fought to the edge of Saigon, earlier today and fired a barrage of rockets into the city, touching off the first signs of panic in the South Vietnamese capital.

People walking around downtown streets panicked when the gunfire and sounds of bombing erupted. Billowing clouds of black smoke could be seen from the Tan Son Nhut area and the city echoed with the blasts from exploding bombs.

A 20mm cannon opened up from a ship docked on the Saigon waterfront and antiaircraft gunners blazed away from the grounds of the presidential palace. At least one elderly woman was killed on a downtown street but there were no immediate reports of other casualties.

As darkness fell on the capital, the sounds of bombs and artillery shells fired into Communist-dominated marshlands across the Saigon river added to the fears that an invasion was imminent.

The Newport bridge was open to military traffic late this afternoon. The nearby American commissary store, equivalent to a large U.S. supermarket, was looted by a mob of Vietnamese citizens.

The looters, estimated at about 500 in number and most of them civilians, used shopping carts to carry off everything from soap to canned goods to beer. Americans had been warned earlier to keep away from the area around the commissary, leaving it wide open to the looters.

'Big' Minh Assumes Presidency, Seeks Cease-Fire, Negotiations

SAIGON (UPI) — Gen. Duong Van "Big" Minh today assumed the presidency of South Vietnam and said he would seek a cease-fire and peace negotiations with the Communists.

Minh, 59, said he wanted to have a government of "mutual understanding and peace."

As he spoke, fighting raged on the outskirts of Saigon only three miles from the presidential palace.

There was no immediate reply from the Viet Cong delegation in Saigon but within an hour of his speech military sources said captured South Vietnamese Air Force planes flown by Communist pilots bombed Saigon's Tan Son Nhut airport.

The raid which panicked Saigon's residents was accompanied by small arms and antiaircraft fire near the presidential palace and the U.S. Embassy.

(The Viet Cong's Provisional Revolutionary Government delegation in Paris issued a statement which amounted to a rejection of Minh's cease-fire appeal. It said there could be no end to the fighting until South Vietnam dismantles its war machine and the United States backs the 1973 Paris accords and "respects truly the fundamental rights of the Vietnamese people.")

President Tran Van Huong turned over his powers to Minh during a late afternoon ceremony at the palace. Outside a thunderstorm lashed the capital.

Huong told Minh, "Your responsibilities are great."

In his inaugural address, Minh said, "Within the days to come, I can promise you nothing. There will be difficulties."

Minh said his government would free all political prisoners detained under the regime of former president Nguyen Van Thieu, who resigned one week ago today. He also guaranteed full freedom of the press.

Minh, who led the 1963 coup which deposed the late President Ngo Dinh Diem, named as Vice President Nguyen Van Nguyen, former speaker of the lower house.

Minh said his prime minister would be Vu Van Mau, foreign minister under Diem and now a senator who speaks for the An Quang Buddhist bloc.

Minh said he would press for a cease-fire and a return to the peace talks based on the 1973 Paris agreements.

"I will welcome any initiative and any suggestion for peace," Minh said.

"We want to unify all elements of the people and live in peace. That is the spirit of the Paris agreement."

He urged South Vietnamese citizens not to flee the country under the American emergency evacuation program.

"I want to tell you, dear citizens, that this is our beloved land. Please be courageous and stay here and accept the verdict of God. Please remain and stay together, reconstructing South Vietnam."

"Let us sit down together and negotiate, and work out a settlement."

The 72-year-old Huong, whose has been in poor health for a number of years, said in a speech before Minh was introduced:

"Despite my old age, I tried to do my best. However, I realize I could not perform such a critical responsibility."

"I was happy to find a man willing to shoulder this responsibility... to try to save the Republic of Vietnam."

It was uncertain whether the election of the neutralist general would satisfy the Communists and avert an all-out assault against the South Vietnamese capital.

In Paris, the Viet Cong's Provisional Revolutionary Government demanded the abolition of the Saigon government before talking peace — but made no mention of Minh.

Asked whether the Communists would be willing to enter peace talks with Minh, a Viet Cong spokesman said "anyone who loves peace... would be acceptable."

Both U.S. and South Vietnamese leaders appeared convinced the reopening of peace talks — called off by Saigon a year ago — was the only hope of saving the government from defeat within days.

"We are beaten," Senate President Tran Van Lam said. "We accept humiliation. But it is better to accept humiliation with your brothers than with strangers. I hope the winners think of the South Vietnamese as their brothers."

In Washington, Assistant Secretary of State Robert McCloskey said the United States has stepped up diplomatic efforts to obtain a negotiated end to the war.

The Communists control three-fourths of South Vietnam and 23 of the country's 44 provinces. An estimated 150,000 Communist soldiers were within striking distance of Saigon, outnumbering the 50,000 government troops to 1.

Political sources said Minh, leader of the 1963 coup that overthrew President Ngo Dinh Diem, wanted a U.S. withdrawal to get the Viet Cong to agree to joining a coalition government.

Brothers Drown While Fishing

LAKE KATRINE

Double tragedy struck a Whittier family Sunday when two young brothers who had gone fishing drowned in Lake Katrine.

Dead were Joseph Schatzel, 12, and his brother, David, 10, children of Edwin and Anne Schatzel of 93 Dunwoodie Drive, Whittier, a development in the Town of Ulster.

Hurley State Police, who investigated the mishap, said the boys left their home at about 9:15 a.m. Sunday to go fishing in Lake Katrine.

When the boys failed to return home later at a time designated when they left, police were called and an all-out search was begun.

The boys' fishing gear was located on the east shore of the lake near a partially submerged boat, police said, and dragging operations were set in motion.

Assisted by East Kingston, Ulster Hose Company No. 5 and Port Ewen volunteer firemen, police finally located the bodies about 10 feet from shore in about 10 to 15 feet of water. The bodies were found near the boat, authorities said.

Authorities speculated that the two apparently tumbled into the water from the boat between 9:15 and 10 a.m., although they indicated there was no certainty as to exactly what happened since there were apparently no witnesses.

Police said today they had not yet determined whether either of the boys, both students at Riccardi School in Glasco, were able to swim. Joseph was in the sixth grade and David was in the fourth grade.

The two boys were pronounced dead at the scene at 3:45 p.m. after being pulled from the water.

Ulster County Coroner William S. Keyser, who was at the scene, today ruled the deaths accidental from asphyxia due to submersion.

Police said today they had not yet determined ownership of the partially submerged boat found at the scene. Apparently, according to police, one of the dead boys had been seen in the boat the day prior to the drownings by another youngster.

How Nixon's 'Unstable' Behavior Almost Changed American History

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former President Nixon was "unstable" just before his resignation, says presidential chronicler Theodore H. White, who saw him at the time as "a time bomb which, if not defused in just the right way, might blow the course of all American history apart."

White's day-by-day account of how White House insiders led by chief of staff Alexander M. Haig slowly persuaded Nixon to resign last year appears in the May issue of Readers Digest.

"What the men in the White House were involved in, without ever admitting it to themselves, was the management of an unstable personality," White said.

Starting his narrative on July 31, 1974, eight days before Nixon announced his resignation, White describes Nixon's behavior as "increasingly erratic," with Haig acting as substitute President in many matters of day-to-day business.

White says Haig realized Nixon had to leave office as soon as he read, on July 31, the transcripts of a then-secret White House tape in which Nixon ordered aides to stop an FBI Watergate investigation. The tape dated from June 23, 1972, six days after the Watergate burglary.

Haig's problem, White says, was to make Nixon realize he had to resign without triggering the opposite response. "If Haig could get the facts before the President clearly, he was certain that the President would act beyond himself in the national interest and resign," White says.

"Yet, with too much pressure, something might trigger the combat instinct in Richard Nixon ... Haig was dealing with a time bomb which, if not defused in just the right way, might blow the course of all American history apart."

White's narrative concludes with a description of a Nixon's tearful farewell to a group of Republican loyalists, minutes before he went on television to announce his resignation. Nixon tried to end the meeting with an apology, White says.

"Then his composure gave way entirely, his breath sucking into a sob which he controlled long enough to continue, 'I just hope ... I haven't let you down.'"

"Now he broke, tears streaming down his face. He tried to get up, missed the chair arm, could not rise, finally found the arm and rose...."

White is the Pulitzer-prize-winning author of the "Making of the President" books, which have chronicled each presidential election since 1960.

State Breakdowns Cause Revenue Losses

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — New York State has lost millions of dollars in revenues because of numerous procedural breakdowns within the state Income Tax Bureau, according to the state comptroller's office.

State auditors released a report Sunday night calling for several changes in the tax collection operations, including a revised form for personal income taxes.

The study comes at a time when Gov. Hugh L. Carey is arguing with Republicans over the need to increase taxes. Carey insists the state needs higher taxes, while the GOP calls such a boost unnecessary.

The audit of the bureau, a division of the Department of Taxation and Finance, found that in 1972 as much as $6.8 million in additional taxes could have been collected if examiners had caught "obvious taxpayer errors or omissions."

The state auditors also said that millions of dollars in interest was being lost annually because of processing delays and a failure to follow up quickly on delinquent tax accounts.

"Additional tax revenues can be realized from the personal income tax if the bureau's system for selecting cases for audit is improved and if the audits are made promptly," the report said.

In the bureau's Estimated Tax Unit, auditors found lapses of five to 43 days from the time money was received to when it was deposited in a state account. They said each day of delay represented about $145,000 a year in lost interest.

"We noted numerous instances where bureau procedures were not being followed," the report said, adding that "these breakdowns in procedures make the bureau vulnerable to a weakening in the integrity of its operating system."

The auditors said the situation "may lead many taxpayers to assume that the various notices sent to them need not be taken seriously because the bureau does not follow up on them timely."

Last week, the governor announced that he would veto all future measures requiring new spending because of the state's fiscal picture. He said new taxes were necessary to close a gap of about $500 million between revenues and expenses.

Senate Majority Leader Warren M. Anderson has refused to go along with Carey's contention that a tax boost is necessary. Anderson has argued that the state will be able to raise enough money without imposing higher tax levels.

Tuition Aid Program Procedures Scored

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Procedures for disbursing Regents Scholarships and Tuition Assistance Program awards to college students need tightening up to prevent the loss of thousands of dollars, State Comptroller Arthur Levitt's office said today.

In an audit of the programs, Levitt's office found that safeguards to prevent fraud or theft of scholarship checks to students were inadequate at many colleges in the state, and considerable sums were being lost through overpayment.

The Regents scholarships, which began in 1913, and the Tuition Assistance Program's predecessor, the Scholar Incentive Program, gave $82.5 million to 245,000 students during the 1972-73 school year.

The Tuition Assistance Program, with maximum grants of $1,500, got under way during the current school. It is greatly expanded over the Scholar Incentive Program, which began in 1962.

In a study of procedures at 20 of the state's 481 colleges, the auditors said they found "an excessive rate of erroneous payments" and "a need for improved internal controls."

They said 5 to 10 per cent of the awards at the 20 schools, and "found that 12 of the 20 colleges processed $17,011 in erroneous payments for various terms between Fall, 1972, and Spring, 1974."

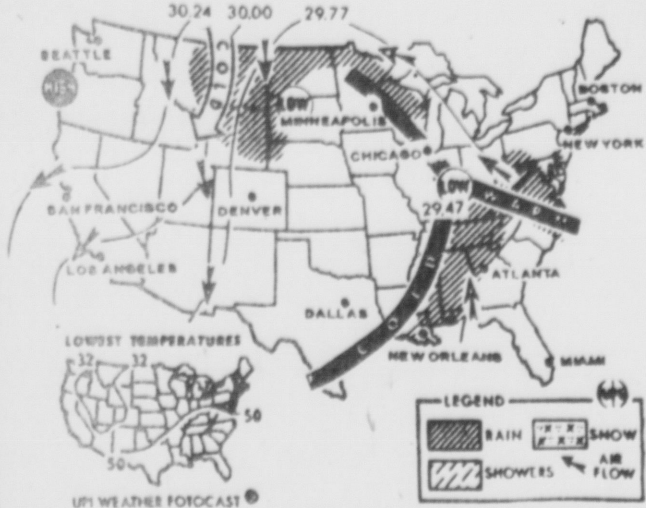

When projected to all of the colleges in the state, the comptroller's office said, the error rate "can result in the improper disbursement of a considerable amount of state funds."

"Why can't I have a checking account at my savings bank?"

People ask us that question every day. The answer is that New York State law does not now give savings banks the power to offer checking accounts.

The law should be changed, to give you a better choice.

Today, New York State banking law gives you two choices, neither of them satisfactory. You can have both your savings and checking accounts in a commercial bank — and lose out on the higher interest rates savings banks pay on savings accounts. Or you can have your savings in a savings bank and your checking account in a commercial bank — and have to run back and forth to do your banking.

There's nothing about checking accounts that makes them uniquely a commercial bank service. On the contrary, they belong in savings banks. After all, savings banks are the human side of banking. They are in the business of helping you conduct your personal banking.

Yet no savings bank in New York State can offer you full checking account privileges. Full checking account privileges include overdrafts, so that if you write a check for more than your balance the bank may simply grant you a loan for the amount of the overdraft. They also include certification of checks and automatic transfer of funds from savings accounts to checking accounts.

To have the convenience of full checking account services in your savings bank requires only a simple change in the law. You can help. Let your State Senator and Assemblyman know that you want this benefit and convenience.

Your legislators will pay a lot of attention to you because you're not just a customer, you're also a voter and a constituent. They may already be in favor of changing the law, but it could help them to know that you are, too.

Syria May Issue Mandate On U.S. Mideast Forces

Warning that a "battle is drawing near," a leading Syrian politician says Syria and Egypt will allow U.N. peace-keeping forces to remain in the Middle East only until the end of July.

Suheil Sukkareya, a leader of Syria's ruling Baath party, told a Beirut news agency Sunday that Syria will renew the mandate of the U.N. force for only two months when it expires May 30.

The new extension would keep the U.N. troops in the buffer zone on the Golan Heights until July 30.

Egypt earlier extended the mandate of the U.N. troops between Egyptian and Israeli lines in the Sinai Desert for only three months as of April 24, ending their authorized stay on July 24.

Both mandates previously had been renewed for six months at a time. They were negotiated originally by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger in his step-by-step Middle East peace strategy which failed to make further progress this year.

Sukkareya said Syria's decision for a two-month renewal "was taken in agreement with Egypt so that the mandates of the U.N. forces would end at the same time."

"A battle is drawing near because all indications show that Israel will not withdraw and will not recognize the rights of the Palestinians," Sukkareya said.

"What is required from the fighting fronts after the expiry of the mandates is for Israel to withdraw from the occupied lands and give the Palestinian people their full rights," he said.

Israeli Foreign Minister Yigal Allon said in an interview published in the Paris newspaper Le Figaro today that Israel wants its Arab neighbors to recognize its existence at the Middle East peace conference in Geneva. Allon left Israel for Paris today on a three-day visit to France.

Allon also called the current U.S. reassessment of Mideast policy "quite natural, but it appears to me inconceivable that the United States will undertake anything which might weaken the defensive capacities of Israel."

In Moscow, the Communist party newspaper Pravda said today a new Middle East settlement must guarantee Israel's right to an independent existence.

The statement was the most emphatic reaffirmation to date of new Kremlin concern for Israel's position in Middle East bargaining.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko last week offered guarantees for Israel's continued existence in return for withdrawal from Arab land.

Ford Wants Fair Trade Laws Repealed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford today called for a repeal of fair trade laws, saying such a move would save consumers $2 billion a year.

But he also said he opposes legislation creating a new consumer agency, saying it would only add another layer of expensive federal bureaucracy.

In a speech prepared for the annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, Ford said regulation costs consumers money because it prevents competition that can lower prices.

"While we are all accustomed to the open debate on the government's budget, far too little attention has been focused on the ways in which government regulations levy a hidden tax on the American people," Ford said.

"In the nearly 99 years since we created the first federal regulatory commission, we have built a system of regulation which abounds with contradictions and excesses — all to the detriment of the public. There are sound estimates that government regulations have added billions of unnecessary dollars to business and consumer costs every year."

He said Congress should end fair trade laws which allow manufacturers to set minimum prices for items they sell. Discount stores have been trying for years to overturn these state laws so they could sell at lower prices.

"Federal law now permits states to allow manufacturers to dictate the price of their products, and drives up the cost of such items as books, cosmetics, shoes and hardware," Ford said. "These Depression-era laws — which cost consumers an estimated $2 billion a year — should be laid to rest alongside the N.R.A. Blue Eagle of the same period."

Other needs Ford mentioned:

—A financial institutions law to let banks and savings institutions compete for lending services and interest rates.

—Reform of federal transportation regulations, allowing railroads to adjust rates without influence from the Interstate Commerce Commission, which he said "will lower costs for consumers and save approximately 70,000 barrels of oil a day."

—Removal of price controls on new natural gas sold across state lines.

—A meeting, which Ford said "I will be convening shortly," of all regulatory commissioners to discuss needs to foster competition and consider inflationary effects.

Five Mountaineers Trapped in Avalanche

STEVENSON, Wash. (UPI)

—Spring avalanches rumbled down two mountains during the weekend, killing one hiker and trapping five others in the snow.

Fifty rescuers tried Sunday to reach the five mountaineers lost on the north slope of Mt. St. Helens but were forced back by 70-mile-an-hour winds, whiteouts and frigid temperatures. It was not known if the hikers were dead or alive.

Rescue teams were ordered to make another effort today if the weather lets up.

"It's uncertain that we'll get the kind of weather we need," a spokesman of the Skamania County sheriff's office said.

The five missing climbers, all students at the University of Puget Sound, were identified as Karen Moniot and Nina Engebretson, both of Tacoma, Wash.; Erick Spurell of Denver, Colo.; Dick Pfesser of Federal Way, Wash.; and Phil Burdick of Eatonville, Wash.

The students were in a 29-member mountaineering class which was struck by the avalanche after pitching tents Saturday night at the 6,500-foot level of the volcanic peak. The other 24 hikers made it back safely.

A few hours earlier Sallie Hee, 28 of Corvallis, Ore., died under a wall of snow and ice on Mt. Hood. She was an oceanography instructor at Oregon State University and was leading members of the Mazamas Club down the 11,245-foot mountain.

A Forest Service spokesman said ground crystals under a recent three-foot snowfall had been worn down "like ball bearings." The weight of the hikers or the wind — weekend gusts were up to 70 miles per hour — could have triggered the avalanches, he said.

Civil War Benefits Still Being Paid

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Civil War

ended 110 years ago this month, but the Veterans Administration is still spending almost half a million dollars a year to support 417 widows and children of Civil War veterans.

A VA spokesman said today there are still 205 widows of Civil War veterans ranging in age from 60 to 118. There are also 212 children aged 50 to 98 who have physical or mental disabilities.

Last year the government spent $525,503 on these widows and children. With deaths, that is expected to fall below $500,000 this year.

About two-thirds of the survivors are from the Union side, the VA said. Confederates did not qualify until 1958. Walter Williams, the last veteran, died died in 1960 at the age of 117 in Houston.

The oldest surviving Civil War widow is Angela Davalos Moran of Polanco, Mexico, who receives a monthly check of $134 and will celebrate her 119th birthday in three weeks. In 1888, a week before her 32nd birthday, she married Henry Moran, a 45-year-old railroader working in Mexico.

Some of the other Civil War widows are products of May-December marriages. Mrs. Mary Miller of Grove City, Ohio, was 31 in 1915 when she married Quincy Miller, a 68-year-old veteran.

The oldest surviving Confederate widow is Lulu Lewis, 105, of Ola, Ark.

New Way Found To Stop Hair Loss, Grow More Hair

HOUSTON, Texas — If you don't suffer from male pattern baldness, you can now stop your hair loss and grow more hair.

For years "they said it couldn't be done". But now a firm of laboratory consultants has developed a treatment for both men and women, that is not only stopping hair loss but is really growing hair!

They don't even ask you to take their word for it. They invite you to try the treatment for 32 days, at their risk, and see for yourself!

Naturally, they would not offer this opportunity unless the treatment worked. However, it is impossible to help everyone.

The great majority of cases of excessive hair fall and baldness are the beginning and more fully developed stages of male pattern baldness and cannot be helped.

But, if you are not already slick bald, how can you be sure what is actually causing your hair loss? Even if baldness may seem to "run in your family," this is certainly no proof of the cause of YOUR hair loss.

Hair loss caused by sebum can also run in your family, and many other conditions can cause hair loss. If you wait until you are slick bald and your hair roots are dead, you are beyond help. So, if you still have any hair on top of your head, and would like to stop your hair loss and grow more hair... now is the time to do something about it before it's too late.

Loesch Laboratory Consultants, Inc., will supply you with treatment for 32 days, at their risk, if they believe the treatment will help you. Just send them the information listed below. All inquiries are answered confidentially, by mail and without obligation. Adv.

60,000 Angry Union Members

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Robert F. Kennedy Stadium seats 53,000, usually happy, football fans. Saturday, however, an estimated 60,000 union members, mostly angry, crowded its aisles and spilled out onto the expensive new turf.

They demanded jobs and a change in administration economic policies.

The stadium rally followed protest marches to the Capitol and the White House, accompanied by a nostalgic litany of civil rights and labor songs.

But it broke up in disarray when a group of about 1,500 to 2,000 demonstrators surged onto the stadium field and shouted down Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey and each succeeding speaker from Congress, whose efforts were also impeded by a faulty sound system.

Police estimated the crowd at 60,000, more than the organizers had counted on. "It's been a long time since we had a demonstration here this large where we didn't have any problems," said Deputy Police Chief R.L. Rabe.

Fire Damages Lounge

KINGSTON
Fire which started in a combustible container into which ashtrays had been emptied extensively damaged the Lagnaf Lounge (formerly the Circle Bar) at 746 Broadway early Sunday, fire officials said.

Firemen, called to the scene by police shortly after 5 a.m., found the bar area heavily involved in flames and had to force their way into the one-story building to get at the fire.

A woman in a neighboring apartment was gotten out safely by firemen, as smoke poured from the burning building. Slight smoke damage was reported to the neighboring building 744 Broadway.

Heavy fire damage was reported to the bar area of the building where the fire started, and smoke damage was reported throughout the structure owned by Fannie Carpino and operated by Richard Walker.

Five pieces of paid apparatus and three pieces of volunteer apparatus were at the scene until about 6:30 a.m. No injuries were reported.

Session Tonight

KINGSTON
The Laws and Rules Committee of the Common Council will hold a public hearing at city hall tonight at 7:30 p.m. on a request by Granada Builders of Kingston to rezone a 2.9-acre parcel of land on Broadway from C-2 to R-5.

Granada plans to build a 100-unit senior citizen housing complex on the site now owned by the Order of St. Anne's. The site was rezoned in 1973 for the construction of a Grand Union supermarket.

No Jonah This Time

BRISBANE, Australia (UPI) — Searchers recovered the remains of a missing hunter from the belly of a 19-foot salt water crocodile, police said today.

Police said Peter Reimers, 32, was swallowed by the reptile while taking a nap during a hunting and fishing trip at Weipa, 1,200 miles north of Brisbane.

Reimers decided to lie down and rest beside shallow water at a freshwater lagoon 20 miles east of Weipa while his two companions went fishing elsewhere, police said. Officers said the crocodile apparently lunged six feet from the water and attacked him while he slept.

His two companions searched the area but only found his rifle, watch, hat and shoes neatly piled nearby.

He said they guessed what had happened when they found mud scuffed up and blood on the scene. They called Weipa police and organized a hunt.

Police and friends of the dead man exploded a dynamite charge under water to stun the crocodile and then shot it as it surfaced. Reimers' dismembered body was recovered from the crocodile's belly. Searchers identified Reimers by his head.

Police said this species of crocodile was plentiful in far North Queensland and frequently came up tidal creeks to fresh water for feeding.

The last recorded death in Queensland by crocodile was 31 years ago when an aboriginal groundsman was killed at a zoo in central Queensland by an 87-year-old crocodile called "Big Momma."

Police said the crocodile that killed Reimers was about the same weight as "Big Momma" — one ton.

Robbery On the Thruway

TOWN OF ROSENDALE
A Demarest, N.J. man was robbed at gunpoint late Saturday on the Thruway in the town of Rosendale by a young hitchhiker he'd picked up near New Paltz, state police said.

Authorities are seeking a white youth, about 5-feet, 9-inches tall. Police said he wore brown pants, a blue or green shirt and a maroon and white waist-length jacket at the time of the robbery.

As police described the hold-up, Frank Stapleton, 49, was traveling north on the super-highway, when he stopped near New Paltz to pick up the hitchhiker. At about milepost 87 the youth asked to be let off, and when Stapleton stopped, the youth allegedly pulled out a handgun and made off with Stapleton's wallet and personal papers. He fled into the darkness.

Police searched the area after being notified of the 10:10 p.m. robbery, but failed to locate the youth.

HIGH FALLS
The weatherman provided the wind Sunday to get the High Falls Civic Association first annual Fly-In off the ground with 100 balloons sent aloft signaling the colorful event which included kite flying, a model plane program and helicopter demonstration.

Held at Carleton Beach Field, Lucas Turnpike, about 400 persons attended the fly-in which was sponsored by the Rondout Valley Schools, Poughkeepsie Civil Air Patrol Squadron and the civic association. The program was headed up by Bernie Spar, High Falls resident and New York State director of the National Aerospace Education Association.

Among the many colorful afternoon events was a helicopter demonstration by Ernie Kittner, operator of the Ellenville Airport. Another event was a radio-controlled model airplane flying demonstration by Frank Tiano of Aero Modelers Club of America.

Each of the several hundred helium-filled balloons, which were sent aloft, carried a self-addressed post card. It was hoped that many of the cards will be returned by those who eventually find the grounded balloons and will write back telling where and at what time and day they were found. Kite flying also proved exciting to the many participants at the fly-in.

Among those serving on the committee to plan the vent were Spar, Frances Calcarechio, civic association president; Stephanie Calcarechio, a student at Rondout Valley School and Richard Murphy, a member of the civic association.

Possibility of State Public Bank Doesn't Thrill Area Bankers

KINGSTON
Citing high interest rates, a marked decline in construction starts, the erosion of the municipal bond market and the increased flow of money outside the state, the Assembly Committee on Banks began public hearings last week on proposed legislation that would create a New York State public bank.

And Ulster County's leading private bankers aren't at all thrilled by the prospect.

Assembly Speaker Stanley Steingut, and Assemblyman George Cincotta, chairman of the Assembly's Banking Committee, are the leading proponents of a state-run public bank. Both have been highly critical of New York's private banking institutions, and view their proposed public bank as one solution to the state's economic and financial difficulties.

In a memorandum released prior to last week's hearings, Steingut and Cincotta explained why they feel there is a need for an alternative banking institution in New York State. A policy of banks in New York and across the country to avoid investing for new home construction and mortgages in "undesirable" communities. "The erosion of the municipal bond market. Monies deposited in New York State being used to finance development elsewhere in this country and abroad.

According to Cincotta, "the banking institutions have historically been unable and continue to be unable to deal adequately with (these) problems . . . a new governmental agency is needed in order to stimulate the private sector to better serve public needs."

According to many local bankers, a "new governmental agency" is exactly what the people DON'T need. "Socialistic nonsense," said William R. Stall, senior vice-president of Statewide Savings and Loan Association, "would you like the postal service to handle your banking affairs?"

Although Stall's question may be purely rhetorical, it points up a concern that was expressed by more than one banker during a recent Freeman survey: that the state may be establishing a dangerous precedent of competition with private enterprise, especially in an area in which it has no real expertise.

Stall also suggested that the state legislature must share some of the responsibility for present restrictive monetary policies. "The interest rates are depressed by legislation in New York right now, and with disastrous results," he said, "If it wasn't for the artificially low ceiling, more of the money would stay here."

James Dwyer, president of Rondout National Bank, indicated that existing state and federal regulations — rather than any policies adopted by the individual banks themselves — have created the existing problems.

"If a banker obtains money at 12 percent and loans it at 8 1/2 percent," said Dwyer, "a banker's first obligation is to keep the bank solvent and his second obligation is to make a profit and protect the depositors. There are real problems that I think have to be addressed at the national level. I don't think a state bank would be any more immune to current pressures than the private banks."

The importance of profit was also cited by Robert E. Deitrick, president of Hudson Valley Federal Savings and Loan Association. "We've been having tight money cycles since 1966," he said, "and each time there are suggestions that thrift institutions be forced to keep their money in the state. I disagree. That's no way to make a profit. I think that all our bankers operate in good faith . . . but we're involved in a national money market and we can't be locked into New York State investments."

Deitrick also suggested that legislators may have political, rather than economic, motives for creating a state bank. Other local bankers said they felt the move was designed as a "punishment" for the state's commercial banks for their refusal to step in and help the faltering Urban Development Corp. (UDC).

There is no doubt that a state bank — which would likely be the sole repository for more than $3 billion in state funds — would most hurt the commercial banks, where state monies are now deposited. Very little of that money, however, is deposited in the commercial banks in Ulster County.

John Robbins, president of Sawyer Savings Bank, is another who feels that legislators have "highly political" motives for proposing a state bank. "As a banker," he said, "I question whether the need really does exist."

Howard C. St. John, president of Ulster Savings Bank, said, "Government is trying to do something that private industry can do better. I think the banking industry has served the state well."

St. John, like others of his colleagues in Ulster County, said much of the responsibility for the current plight of the banking industry rests with the regulations that are imposed upon it. "In almost every area," he said, "we're a creature of some governmental agency. I think there are ways to resolve the problems without creating a state bank."

There is only one precedent for a state bank: the Bank of North Dakota, created in 1919 to help save farmers from bankruptcy because of falling agricultural prices after World War I. Both Cincotta and Steingut feel New York's current problems are analogous to those the farmers faced in North Dakota more than 50 years ago, and they believe a state bank will spur lending and development in New York as well.

Woodstock Lawyer Joshua Koplovitz was awarded a Never-before released photo of President and Mrs. John F. Kennedy, Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson and former presidential candidate Adlai Stevenson at a silent auction held Sunday at the home of William Schechter of Lake Hill. Another photograph of the late Robert F. The auction of the photograph and other items was held to help defray expenses of the 1974 Schechter for Congress campaign in the 27th District. Mullany Post . . . First for Ulster

ALBANY
The first statewide appointment of an Ulster County resident under Gov. Carey's administration has been announced by State Commissioner of Motor Vehicles James P. Melton.

Kingston lawyer William C. Mullany has been appointed to serve as a member of the Appeals Board for the State Department of Motor Vehicles for which he will receive $150 a day plus travelling expenses whenever he serves.

The appointment serves to bolster the position of Democratic County Chairman Harold Brown who recommended Mullany for the post.

Brown said today he is extremely pleased that the Carey administration heeded his recommendation and he is hopeful that further state appointments will include other Ulster County Democrats. Mullany's appointment is thought to be especially significant in that Brown is being challenged for his chairmanship by County Legislator Louis M. Klein, who, as Ulster County's leading Carey supporter, has indicated that he is in a position to secure patronage for the county.

Regarding further appointments, Brown said that Carey is going slow but is trying to do right by all areas of the state. He is cautious but is trying to do something, he explained.

Mullany's duties as a member of the Appeals Board include consideration of appeals from determinations made in the Department of Motor Vehicles throughout the state. It involves a high degree of confidentiality and judicial discretion of a very high quality, according to Melton.

Mullany, a native of Queens, is married and has six children. He has been a resident of Elmendorf Heights, Kingston since 1966. He is a member of the law firm of Ewig, Klein, Klein and Mullany.

Democratic candidate for Family Court Judge in 1973, he is president of Kingston Area Library, a member of the board of directors of American Red Cross and Hurley Lions Club and associate appeals agent, U.S. Selective Service.

A graduate of St. John's Law School, Mullany was previously associated with the Hartford Insurance Group, as estate tax attorney for Putnam County and casualty claims supervisor and hearing representative in Workmen's Compensation Claims, Indemnity Insurance Company of America, White Plains.

Feraca Favors New High School

KINGSTON
Joseph Feraca of 44 Alcazar Avenue offered ten reasons today why he thinks there's a need for a new high school for the Kingston City Schools Consolidated District although he still maintains reservations about the proposed site in Lake Katrine.

"In reference to the site in Lake Katrine," he said, "I stated I have reservations, and this is due to the traffic problem, transportation and site development I foresee that must be reviewed and answered before I can justify giving my support, at this time."

No. 1 on Feraca's list of reasons a new high school is needed is the overcrowding at the present Kingston High School on Broadway.

Feraca said the school was built in 1915 for a capacity of 1,569 students and that it now houses 2,384. He said that population projections show that student population will reach 2,700 in 1979 and that "the lowest it will ever get will be 2,493 in 1990." Officials figure the average daily attendance at KHS at 93 percent of enrollment.

Feraca discussed the effects of overcrowding at the present site, the educational disfunctions and limitations and the inherent fire hazards in its "wooden facilities."

By way of alternatives, he said the state has steadfastly refused to allow expansion at the present site. He also said that the State Department of Education would not allow double sessions unless the district had an approved building plan for a new facility. He added that double sessions would rule out any extracurricular activities such as sports and music while doubling the staff.

He also rejects the possibility of using available classroom space as an interim measure until the population decreases. Feraca contends the district is currently using basements (in schools) for classroom space and that "at the most, two schools have one class open apiece." He estimates increased enrollments next fall will utilize those empty classrooms.

Feraca also takes issue with population projections offered by opponents for the new high school.

The main argument against the new high school, other than its $15 million price tag, is that the district will experience a decrease in population during the next 20 years or so.

Feraca said this may be true on a national, state or even regional basis, but not in Ulster County, and his opinion, certainly not in the Kingston Schools Consolidated District.

He said that kindergarten population in the district is on the increase, rising from 774 in 1973 to 800 in 1974 and that it will increase again next fall although he did not offer figures. He did say that the district plans to add kindergarten classes at the Edson and Port Ewen Schools.

He also noted that births in the city did not decrease in 1973 and 1974 (they remained constant at about 1,350, he said) and that projections for the first three months of this year indicate an increase for 1975.

As for the effect on the tax rate of building and staffing a new school, Feraca concludes, "Lastly, according to all forecasts by regional planners, Ulster County's commercial and regional development is estimated to be increasing over other areas of New York State. If this type of growth is to be encouraged, it must be recognized that quality educational facilities must be maintained and expanded. The obvious result of such an increase in commercial and industrial development of our areas is a major factor in the reduction of property taxes by the expansion of the tax base."

. . . Devine Is Opposed

KINGSTON

"Salaries for qualified teachers and administrators, educational materials and special programs will all be curtailed if a new high school is built," John M. Devine, candidate for one of four posts on the Kingston Consolidated School Board predicted today.

"The annual operating expenses for that school would force these actions," Devine said adding that the school district should and must spend money to obtain things necessary to provide its students with a quality education.

"Area property owners are already being taxed near the limit the state law allows, while state aid paid the district will be declining, since this aid is based on our declining enrollment, not on the number of buildings," he said "therefore the voters of the district must choose between the luxury of a new "country club" high school or full funding for present programs vital to maintain the quality of education we offer."

Devine said he does not suggest that we must live with the present conditions at the high school—conditions allowed to deteriorate under the present board.

Schuler Approves Kingston Request

ALBANY
State Transportation Commissioner Raymond T. Schuler announced today he has approved the City of Kingston's $96,000 request to the Federal Urban Mass Transportation Administration for Federal Aid to help finance the purchase of three new buses.

The commissioner approved the City's proposed project, "as being consistent with the Statewide Master Plan for Transportation" as required by state law.

Federal aid amounting to $76,000 is requested to be used with a planned State grant of $15,000 and $5,000 in local funds. Commissioner Schuler said his department had asked for the state grant in the pending Supplemental Budget.

"We are pleased to assist in this project to substantially expand and improve bus service in Kingston," Commissioner Schuler said. "Public transit is becoming increasingly important in all communities of the state as an essential tool in assuring transportation for all citizens and assisting in energy conservation."

The project was developed as the result of studies conducted by the state DOT's Development Division in cooperation with the city at the invitation of Mayor Francis R. Koenig. Three 23-passenger buses will be purchased. Presently Kingston has only one bus operating. The city hopes to go to bid in November.

Schuler has sent a letter to Mayor Koenig notifying him of the approval and advising the mayor to forward the application to Washington for UMTA review.

Kingston Superintendent of Recreation Andrew J. Murphy III and his wife June are joined by Larry Petersen, Moose Lodge governor (L), Toastmaster James Gilpatrick and Msgr. James Keating at Saturday night's testimonial which honored Murphy as the Moose Club's "1975 Citizen of the Year." Murphy has been the city's superintendent of recreation since 1945 and has served under eight mayors. Mayor Francis R. Koenig presented him "The Mayors' Award," the key to the city, in honor of his long service. More than 200 persons were on hand to honor Murphy. (Freeman photo)

The New Refugees

The possible problems arising from the 130,000 Vietnamese war refugees being allowed to immigrate to this country must be solved by our government quickly and before the bulk of the dispossessed arrives here. A poll conducted by Freeman staffer Tim Schuster last week showed that most area people reflected the thoughts of Americans in general by not wanting to slam the gates to America on these war victims. But concern of further glutting of a depressed labor market, and the problems of easy assimilation were thoughtfully voiced by some of those interviewed.

Consequently, it would behoove the Ford administration to take some necessary steps, and quickly. Number one priority must be the setting up of refugee centers that are organized and can efficiently handle the influx of newcomers, rather than allow a disorganized, chaotic situation to develop. Secondly, these centers should be dispersed throughout the nation, rather than having one section of the country absorb the Vietnamese, with a possible damaging impact on its economy. Thirdly, a screening process should be put into effect so that the grafters and crooks who were rife throughout the Thieu regime should not be allowed to immigrate here. The evacuation plan should be reserved for the deserving and the innocent.

Joint Mission

Nagging doubts about the reliability of Soviet equipment to be used in the joint U.S.-Soviet orbital space mission in July are aroused again by the aborted Soyuz 18 manned flight. Though Moscow officials insist that this flight "had nothing to do with" next summer's linkup between Soyuz and Apollo spacecraft, this latest failure raises further questions.

According to Western records, three of the last eight Soyuz flights have failed for one reason or another; the latest was aborted during launching. Though the Russians admit only two failures, even that number is unacceptably high. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration has good reason to make detailed inquiries in Moscow as to what went wrong with Soyuz 18.

The plan for the July mission requires that the three American astronauts in the Apollo spacecraft will not be involved right off the bat. That is, the Apollo will not be launched until a Soyuz vehicle has been in orbit for seven and a half hours. This provides some margin of safety.

Even so, some hard questions must be answered. It is expected that Soviet scientists will make an intensive probe of the latest Soyuz failure. Their findings, when conveyed to NASA, will be an important factor in the decision on final commitment of astronauts to the joint mission.

"What's the matter with me? Why aren't any impressionists doing me?"

By Jack Anderson with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — With the collapse of his policies in Southeast Asia, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger may follow his friends Lon Nol and Nguyen Van Thieu into premature retirement.

White House sources tell us that President Ford hasn't lost confidence in Kissinger. But almost everyone else in the top policy-making councils has.

The ink was hardly dry on the Jan. 27, 1973, Paris peace accords before the Joint Chiefs warned, in effect, that Kissinger had delivered Vietnam to the Communists.

Under the terms Kissinger accepted in Paris, the North Vietnamese army was granted a foothold in the South.

The Joint Chiefs predicted precisely what is now happening in Vietnam. Their secret estimate, as we reported on Feb. 1, 1973, was that President Thieu would not survive and that the Communists would win the final struggle for Vietnam.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Loss of Confidence in Kissinger

While the Joint Chiefs looked upon this as a disaster, some policy-makers have contended that a Communist triumph would actually benefit the United States.

Not only would this stop an enormous financial drain, they argued, but also the rival Communist powers would wind up squabbling among themselves over Indo-China. The United States could enjoy the luxury of standing back and watching the developments.

The best available intelligence indicates that the Khmer Rouge, who are now taking over Cambodia, distrust the North Vietnamese and want to keep their country independent of Hanoi.

The Chinese are also reported to be wary of North Vietnam, which could develop into a rival Communist power on their southern flank.

The Russians, on the other hand, are trying to bolster Hanoi as a counterweight to Communist China.

The United States would have been better off along, in the opinion of many experts abandoning Indo-China to the rivalries of the divided communists.

But meanwhile, the opinion is almost unanimous in the backrooms that Kissinger has mishandled the Vietnam issue and that his policies have badly damaged the United States.

Footnote: Leading Democrats have quietly urged the White House to replace Kissinger with Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield. They believe Mansfield, out of patriotism, could be persuaded to serve as Secretary of State. He would have the prestige, they argue, to restore bipartisan unity to foreign affairs. Our White House sources insist, however, that the President is satisfied with Kissinger and would prefer to see Mansfield work in the Senate for a bipartisan foreign policy.

DIXIE'S DEEDS: Strong-willed Dr. Dixie Lee Ray, as head of the Atomic Energy Commission, sided Justice Department criminal authorities on a fellow commissioner with whom she had major policy disputes.

Dr. Ray, now an assistant secretary of state, vehemently denies that personal hostility or policy differences figured in her complaint against the ex-colleague, Dr. Clarence Larson.

Nevertheless, it cost Larson a chance to be reappointed and has led to a nine-month probe by Justice authorities of 18 conflict-of-interest allegations.

Larson, a distinguished but politically naive Union Carbide scientist, was named to the AEC by President Nixon in 1969. At his Senate confirmation hearings, he admitted he held $71,750 worth of Union Carbide stock.

Because Union Carbide is heavily involved in nuclear work, Larson agreed to sell his stock when it rose to the price at which he had bought it. He also promised not to take part in AEC matters "directly and specifically" affecting Union Carbide.

But he told the committee he could not avoid all decisions that would touch on Union Carbide on a general way. On this basis, he was confirmed and sworn in.

Soon after Dixie Lee Ray took over the commission, she and Larson began to clash. Larson, for example, wanted to put more funds into nuclear safety regulations. Dr. Ray, however, was under orders to keep a tight budget.

By last spring, it was evident the White House wanted to reappoint Larson. At the same time he was invited to testify on Capitol Hill about a nuclear matter which could involve Union Carbide.

Larson cautiously went to Dixie Lee Ray, advised again of his Union Carbide ties, and suggested that another commissioner testify.

Dr. Ray scooted up to see Sen. John Pastore, D-R.I., chairman of the Committee on Atomic Energy without advising all the other commissioners. Although Larson himself had brought up the question, Dr. Ray stressed to Pastore the possibility of a conflict of interest. Pastore agreed the Justice Department should be consulted.

Quickly, Chairman Ray and her general counsel, Marcus Rowden, worked up a case against Larson, won Commission approval, and shipped reams of documents to Justice detailing the 18 allegations. Larson believes every one of the activities falls within his commitments made during his confirmation hearings.

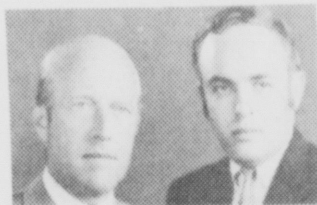

When we reached Dr. Ray, she declined to discuss the matter except to say that "the law requires in any case of suspected conflict of interest, that the facts be referred to Justice."

Rowden, who was named a commissioner to the AEC's successor agency a few months after Larson's departure, backed up his former boss, Dr. Ray.

"This is all played according to the book," Rowden told us. "I'm sorry from a human point of view that an individual who is not a criminal got caught up in this thing."

Inside Report

Ford: Vietnam & Detente

By ROWLAND EVANS and ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Policy decisions two weeks ago by President Ford in the wake of the Vietnam debacle, made in an offhand manner despite grave misgivings high in his own administration, now seem to have worsened what at best was an impossible situation for him.

The President's State of the World address April 10 contained two basic decisions: asking $722 million in Vietnam military aid, and blaming the U.S. fiasco in Southeast Asia on Congress rather than Moscow and Peking. That speech and remarkable events since then are viewed by some important Ford supporters as further undermining his shaky presidency.

The blundering last-ditch struggle for huge, new military aid unnecessarily added another chapter to the domestic political saga of Vietnam, delaying a fresh start. More complicated but more important was the President's insistence on detente-as-usual, dismaying Republicans inside and outside his administration.

Everybody inside the administration agrees that niggardly military aid allowed Saigon by Congress the past two years hastened the disaster. The disagreement came over the point of no return — when no further aid could possibly help. The overwhelming consensus was that the South Vietnamese army (ARVN) was beyond salvation after its northern divisions collapsed last month.

But Gerald R. Ford was not part of that consensus. "The President is a politician and a former football player," one advisor told us. As a politician, he did not want publicly to concede defeat. As a former football star, he felt no game — even the deadly game of war — was lost until the final gun.

Thus, the President dispatched Gen. Frederick Weyand, the Army's estimable chief of staff, to Vietnam as both fact-finder and seeker of a winning game plan. As a fact-finder, Weyand's assessment of military ruin was deadly realistic. As a game winner, his $722 million proposal to re-equip four ARVN divisions to stabilize the military situation was wildly optimistic.

Returning to Washington, Weyand ran into skepticism from Pentagon civilians including Secretary of Defense James Schlesinger. Feeling Weyand's plan had only a minuscule chance to work, these skeptics wanted the President to propose a smaller sum for military aid, but high enough to persuade Saigon the U.S. had no plan to cut and run. This would "buy protection" for thousands of Americans trapped in Saigon, and would be quietly sold to Congress as such.

But by the time Mr. Ford got back from Palm Springs, he had bought the Weyand plan in full. Whereas Weyand privately viewed its chances as marginal at best, the President had convinced himself it was a sure game winner. It went into the State of the World address without internal debate (most presidential advisors viewing it useful for psychological effect on Saigon).

But Congressmen home for Easter had encountered passionate voter opposition to one more cent for Vietnam. The President reacted to this hostility by cranking up a hard-sell campaign, declaring his faith in what his experts perceived as hopeless — Saigon's military revival. In sum, Mr. Ford committed his prestige to a program which could neither work nor be enacted.

The decision on detente was reached even more informally. Schlesinger, a backstage critic of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's detente policies, was not a principal. White House chief of staff Donald Rumsfeld is known to have cautioned Kissinger about exaggerating the fruits of detente.

But during hectic speech-writing before the State of the World address, Rumsfeld proposed, unsuccessfully, one small change about detente. Accordingly, Mr. Ford blamed Congress instead of the Communist superpowers for Vietnam, presumably to save detente.

The result: sharp private criticism by Republicans, including some old Ford advisors. To no avail. Questioned before the American Society of Newspaper Editors April 16, the President pronounced Moscow and Peking guiltless. Yet, when shown an advance text of Kissinger's remarks to the editors for April 17 castigating the Communist powers for violating detente, the President called it "excellent."

Did Mr. Ford not appreciate the gulf between what he and Kissinger were saying? Some administration officials think not. Moreover, they regard the President's kid-glove treatment as expressing the true Ford-Kissinger position, choosing to write off Kissinger's warning to Moscow and Peking as a tactic, not a strategy. The end result: growing Republican dissatisfaction with detente.

To some worried officials inside the administration, Vietnam shows detente has not brought world stability. They feel the administration now faces a choice between worldwide re-engagement of U.S. power or tacit accommodation with alarming Soviet power-growth under the umbrella of detente.

But no great internal debate is expected. "The President has his mind made up, and there's no use carping about it," one high official told us. That suggests the same disorganization in foreign policy-making which prevailed this month, deepening the melancholy in official Washington.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

A Sloppy Reporting Job

We had not been there all day; we were in the White House most of the week. The article had been bought by "Good Housekeeping," not "Reader's Digest."

"The president," Bradlee writes, "wanted to know what questions they had asked Jackie and her maid, Provie, and exactly what answers they'd given. Jackie quoted Provie as saying that the Bishops had wanted to know what Mrs. Kennedy wore to bed, and who slept where..."

"Jackie described her session with the Bishops as chaotic, with one dog biting the other, with the children shouting and screaming up a storm, and with the telephone buzzing like mad. She said Bishop had told her that everyone in the White House referred to Dave Powers as 'John's Other Wife,' but the president didn't seem to think that was very funny."

This is somewhat off the rails. Larry Newman, reporter-editor and a neighbor of Kennedy at Hyannisport, urged the President to have me write "A Day in the Life of..."

The President asked Pierre Salinger to call me. The press secretary said that Mrs. Kennedy, whose baby had died, would be off to the Greek islands for a rest. In that event, I said, I could not write the article because I required a double portrait of Kennedy — one as a statesman; one as a husband and father. No wife, no article.

Firm dates were set up for Oct. 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 1962. From the moment my wife and I arrived in the Oval Office, President Kennedy pressed me to write a book, "not a magazine article." He was an easy man to know, a charmer, a wit and he opened all the doors for interviews with his wife, his staff and White House servants.

Dave Powers told me that when Mrs. Kennedy was away, the President asked him to move into the private White House quarters. Powers' family hung the phrase "John's Other Wife" on him, and Dave thought it was so amusing that he told everybody, including the President.

Mrs. Kennedy did not want to be interviewed by me. She penned a note to chief usher Bernard West that Jim Bishop "writes in third-rate clichés." The President understood her attitude, and knew that I would not write the portrait unless I met the First Lady. Each morning, Mr. Kennedy asked anxiously, "Have you seen Jackie yet?" After the interview, he said to Mrs. Bishop, "Tell me. What did she say?"

The interview was not chaotic. It was held in two places — the private quarters of the Kennedys, where John-John ran glistering nude from a bathtub, and on the South Lawn, where the little boy ran into a mound of raked leaves in his white suit.

Editor Bradlee knows that a good reporter checks facts by "touching bases" with both sides. He didn't phone me. You may be sure, as a result of this story, the column will not appear in the Washington Post. Oh, dear. Me and my big mouth...

Mets' Latest Victory Accomplished the Hard Way

MONTREAL (UPI) — The New York Mets have won eight of 14 games this year but Sunday afternoon they did it the hard way.

The Mets scored six runs in the seventh inning, bringing 11 batters to the plate as they went on to defeat the Montreal Expos 7-6.

"It's the first time we've had to win a ballgame like this that way," said Mets Manager Yogi Berra. "I hope there's more games like this during the season if we happen to be trailing by as many runs. We came from a five-run deficit and that certainly helps."

Berra pointed out the bench strength of the Mets came through for him Sunday.

"I used several players that didn't play in our win on Friday against the Expos and it's a good thing they came through. Even my two pinch-hitters got on base for me."

Jesus Alou got a pinch-hit single in the sixth inning and Gene Clines walked as a pinch-hitter in the big seventh inning and eventually scored one of the runs.

Berra was also happy with his relief pitching. Harry Parker, who got the win, pitched one inning allowing no runs and Bob Apodaca pitched three innings of hitless ball to record his second save.

Dave Kingman and Felix Millan were the big guns in the six-run rally. Kingman started the inning with a single, Millan singled home two runs and then Kingman, batting for the second time in the inning, singled in the go-ahead run. Pete Mackanin's error at second also kept the rally alive.

Dave McNally dropped his first game in four decisions. Rookies Gary Carter and Larry Parrish each drove in two runs for the Expos.

All it took was a little spring weather to bring Dock Ellis out of hibernation.

Ellis, who thrives on warm weather, was the best pitcher on the Pittsburgh Pirates' staff during spring training but he has had trouble getting untracked in the early part of the season, mostly because of the cold weather which prevents him from getting loose.

Before Sunday, Ellis had made three starts for the Pirates and had lost twice with one no-decision while failing to get farther than the seventh inning in any of his outings. In none of those starts did the temperature approach the 50-degree mark.

However, the thermometer climbed to the high 50's in Pittsburgh Sunday and Ellis responded with a six-hitter in pitching the Pirates to a 2-0 triumph over the Philadelphia Phillies. Ellis who had not pitched a shutout since last June, had his fastball hopping and showed

Gare's Last One Counted

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — "You could say," Danny Gare recalled with a grin, "that I put in the last two goals."

It was, however, the last goal that really counted for Gare and the Buffalo Sabres Sunday as they skated to a 6-5 overtime triumph over the Montreal Canadiens in the opener of their NHL Stanley Cup semifinal playoff.

The other semifinal, between the New York Islanders and the defending champion Philadelphia Flyers, will get underway Tuesday night in Philadelphia.

Gare was down on himself after a pass by Montreal's Jacques Lemaire went off his stick and into the Buffalo goal with just 24 seconds left in the third period to send the game into overtime.

The Sabres disputed the goal because defenseman Jerry Korab was inside the net on his back when the puck went in.

"It went off my stick and I really felt bad," the baby-faced Buffalo rookie said of Lemaire's goal. "I could see the puck laying about three inches inside the post and I said 'Oh, my God.'"

Gare's game winner came 4:42 into the overtime when he took a pass from Craig Ramsay and slammed a quick shot through the legs of Montreal goaltender Ken Dryden.

"I just shot it on stride," said Gare, a 31-goal scorer during the regular season. "I did see an opening between his (Dryden's) legs. It wasn't too big but I shot for it and luckily it went where I wanted it to go."

"We weren't going to let a bad break beat us," he added. The Sabres got off to a 3-2 advantage in the opening period on goals by Rick Martin, Rene Robert and Rick Dudley.

Guy Lapointe and Guy Lafleur countered for the Canadiens. Lapointe tied it for Montreal with his second goal at 6:44 of the middle period.

Yvan Cournoyer put the Canadiens ahead 4-3 with a power play goal when the Sabres were two men short at 10:57 of the second period. Gil Perreault tied it for Buffalo with 1:45 left in the same period.

Lapointe's first goal, at the 32-second mark of the first period, was scored against Sabres goalie Gerry Desjardins. Desjardins departed with a bruised right knee when the game was just 56 seconds old and was replaced by veteran Roger Crozier.

Canadiens Coach Scotty Bowman was in a quiet mood after the game. "You can't play well when you give up six goals," Bowman said quietly.

Ramsay, who fed Gare the pass for the final goal, felt he had "a lot to make up for."

"I was on for four of the five Montreal goals," Ramsay said. "We felt we were the line that had played bad and we had to get it back."

"When we broke up the ice," he added, recalling the final goal, "nobody was going to catch up."

In the World Hockey Association, the defending champion Houston Aeros took a 2-0 lead over San Diego in the best-of-seven Western playoffs as they topped the Mariners, 2-1. In the East, Minnesota downed Quebec, 4-2, to tie their series at two games each.

Houston goalie Ron Grahame turned away 47 shots and Murray Hall and Jim Sherritt did the scoring for the Aeros in their victory.

Saints' netminder John Garrett was the key to Minnesota's win as he stopped 41 shots, 16 in the second period. Fran Huck and Wayne Connelly scored the decisive goals.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Jim "Catfish" Hunter finally caught the big one—his first victory as a New York Yankee.

Hunter, who had lost three games and had one no decision in his first four outings, hurled 7 2-3 innings of no-hit ball against the Milwaukee Brewers to pace the Yankees to a 10-1 triumph in the nightcap of a doubleheader Sunday after the Brewers won the opener 7-0 behind Pete Broberg's seven-hitter.

Hunter gave up a ground single to left with two out in the eighth to Sixto Lezcano and in so doing lost the opportunity to become the first Yankee to pitch a no-hitter since Don Larson's perfect game in the 1956 World Series.

Did Hunter say anything to anybody after the hit by Lezcano? "I told Graig Nettles that he was out of position. No, but that one was dead in the hole no way to get it," said the now 1-3 righthander. "I started to really think about it (no-hitter) in the eighth. It was in my head most of the game, but really in the eighth."

By UPI

Jim Hunter did it at last and Jim Palmer and Vida Blue did it again.

That was the big news in the American League Sunday when the three pitchers who probably will most influence the AL pennant race delivered sparkling performances.

Hunter, the Yankees' $2.8-million pitcher who had lost his first three decisions, hurled 7 2-3 hitless innings and wound up with a three-hitter as New York defeated the Milwaukee Brewers 10-1. Hunter, who pitched a perfect game in 1968, carried his bid for the second no-hitter of his career into the eighth inning until Sixto Lezcano singled.

SPORTS TODAY

That, of course, was great news for the Yankees but there was even better news in the clubhouses of the Baltimore Orioles and Oakland A's. The Orioles are hoping that Palmer, the AL's Cy Young Award winner in 1973, will resume his place at the head of their staff after a 7-12 season in 1974, while the A's are pinning their hopes for a fifth straight Western title to a large degree on Blue's ability to replace Hunter as the leader of their staff.

Both Palmer and Blue looked equal to the task on Sunday.

Palmer, working with an early 4-0 lead, set down the Cleveland Indians on seven hits for a 6-1 victory that increased his season mark to 3-1. Palmer has shown no signs of the arm trouble he had last season and has an 0.77 earned run average.

Blue fired a five-hitter as the A's defeated the California Angels 7-1 in the first game of their doubleheader. The A's angry young man now has a 5-1 won-lost record and a 2.51 ERA in support of the belief that he will be the new leader of the Oakland staff.

Palmer struck out five and walked one in pitching his third complete game of the season. Run-scoring singles by Lee May and Brooks Robinson highlighted a three-run first inning and Ken Singleton hit his first AL homer to lead the Orioles' 11-hit attack. Jim Perry suffered his third defeat in four decisions.

Blue struck out eight and walked none and was in trouble only in the seventh inning when the Angels got three straight singles to cut the A's lead to 2-1. The A's countered with five runs in the eighth inning to clinch the opener.

The Angels won the second game, 9-1, as Bruce Bochte drove in three runs with a homer and a double. Both benches emptied when Bochte was hit on the side of the helmet by a pitch by Jim Todd in the sixth inning but no one was injured.

The Chicago White Sox defeated the Kansas City Royals 8-6, and the Detroit Tigers beat the Boston Red Sox 5-4 in other AL games. The Texas-Minnesota doubleheader was rained out.

White Sox 8 Royals 6

Jim Kaat won his 10th straight game over two seasons for the White Sox as Bill Melton led a 17-hit attack with two run-scoring singles. Ken Henderson and Brian Downing had three hits each and Jorge Orta and Bucky Dent two each in the White Sox attack. Bruce Dal Canton was the loser for the Royals.

Tigers 5 Red Sox 4

Ben Oglivie's two-run fifth-inning homer, his first hit of the season, helped the Tigers beat the Red Sox and gave Lerrin LaGrow his third straight victory. Bernie Carbo and Dwight Evans hit ninth-inning homers for the Red Sox.

Hayes Isn't Awed By Celts' Past

By United Press International

Elvin Hayes asked a fair enough question. "Why does everyone think the NBA is spellbound by the Celtics?" the 6-foot-9 center of the Washington Bullets wanted to know.

Hayes obviously wasn't awed by all the championship banners hanging from the rafters of old Boston Garden, where the Bullets met Boston in the NBA Eastern Conference playoffs Sunday.

Hayes showed his contempt properly, pouring in 34 points, pulling down 12 rebounds and leading the Bullets to a 100-95 come-from-behind victory in the opening game of the best-of-seven series.

However, Hayes' coach, former Boston star K.C. Jones, held a little more respect for the opposition.

"No way we'll have an easy series, no way at all. Hell, these are the Boston Celtics and they've been on top for a long time. They'll adjust any way they think they have to."

The Celtics started off running and gunning, defending their league title in the style that won it for them and building a 55-43 halftime lead. But something happened in the second half.

"We were sitting around like frogs on lily pads, sunning ourselves when we should have been playing," was Celtics Coach Tom Heinsohn's explanation.

Washington outscored Boston 13-2 to open the third quarter and close within a point. Another 10-0 spurt at the beginning of the fourth period put the Bullets ahead to stay at 80-73.

Hayes was Washington's main weapon in the second half, keeping the Celtics from getting a second shot, scoring and establishing himself on defense. But the victory truly belonged to the entire Bullet team, which played excellent defense to stop the Celtics' running game.

"The Buffalo series helped us a lot," Hayes said of the seven-game quarterfinal victory over the young and fast-breaking Braves. "It got us into the train of thought that we had to go out and play tough defense. It was a tough series. I guess our play just carried over."

Heinsohn also drew on the immediate past for answer to his team's second half lethargy:

"This ballclub is the Capital (Washington) Bullets, not the Houston Rockets," whom the Celtics polished off last week in five games. "We didn't play our game; we weren't moving; we were trotting. You'd think we just got finished with Buffalo. We played dummy."

Texans Dominate At Trenton

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI) — Two Texans dominated the World Series of Auto Racing at Trenton International Speedway Sunday as A.J. Foyt of Houston won the stock car race and the overall championship and Johnny Rutherford of Ft. Worth won the Indianapolis car 150 miles.

Foyt, driving Hoosier's 1974 Chevrolet in the 150-mile stock car race, took an early lead from his pole position and led Bobby Unser's 1972 Plymouth across the finish line by 4.3 seconds.

But the 40-year-old Foyt, who won his 50th U.S. Auto Club victory here three weeks ago, could not repeat his feat in the Indy car event. A slow lap into the pits on lap 40, caused by a minor engine trouble, put him far behind Rutherford.

A track record of 124.571 miles an hour was established by Foyt in the stock car race, which recorded four yellow caution flags caused by a spin by Billy Vukovich on the back stretch.

Bobby Unser, Roger McCluskey, Jimmy McElreath and Pancho Carter followed Foyt.

In the Indy Championship car series, Johnny Rutherford took the lead at the drop of the green flag in his McLaren and gained an immediate 1.5 second margin over Foyt.

Foyt came from behind by the ninth lap, however, and guided his Coyote into the lead, which he maintained until just before the half-way point. Then, he suddenly slowed down coming around the fourth turn and rolled into the pits, giving Rutherford the chance to beat him to the finish line.

Foyt finished fourth behind Rutherford, Gordon Johncock and Wally Dallenbach.

Foyt collected a total of 25 points to win $46,750. Rutherford took home $36,000 with a 14 point total.

Al's Secret Weapon: Peanut Butter and Jelly

CARLSBAD, Calif. (UPI) — When Al Geiberger gets in trouble he knows exactly what to do.

He just reaches for his secret weapon—a peanut butter and jelly sandwich.

After munching half a sandwich of his favorite nutrition, the popular Santa Barbara, Calif., veteran knocked in a 10-foot birdie putt on the first sudden-death playoff hole Sunday to beat South African Gary Player for the $40,000 first prize in the MONY Tournament of Champions.

"I ate half a sandwich on 13 during the round and my wife, Lynn, gave me the second half as we were driving in the cart to 15 for the playoffs," Geiberger grinned. "She said we needed to pull out all the stoppers. Well I guess it worked, didn't it?"

Player, who was sitting waiting to be interviewed, quipped "Well, I had a banana, but I slipped on the skin."

While Geiberger does have fun with reporters about his peanut butter and jelly sandwiches, he does have a serious problem.

The slender former University of Southern California ace suffers from low blood sugar and eats on the course to keep up his strength.

The Geiberger-Player duel came two weeks after the dramatic Masters finish among Jack Nicklaus, Johnny Miller and Tom Weiskopf. Nicklaus, who won his record fifth green coat in Augusta, Ga., was here as were Weiskopf and Miller, but none was ever in contention.

Miller shot a final-round 65 to come from last place in the elite 30-man field and tie for 15th, but Nicklaus was able to dislodge the blond-haired northern Californian from the top spot in the tour money winnings list for the first time in 16 months.

By finishing at 257, 10 shots behind the Geiberger-Player totals for 72 holes, Nicklaus earned $5,945, giving him $155, 187 for the year to Miller's $153,665. Miller shot 291.

Geiberger started the final day three shots ahead of Lee Trevino, who finished one shot down with a 71, and Jim Colbert, who was fourth two strokes back at 71.

While Geiberger faltered with a 73, Player charged in with a 67. Geiberger had a chance to win the tournament on its 72nd hole but three-putted from 30 feet away.

Player, who also bogeyed the 72nd hole, wound up missing a 12-foot birdie putt on the first sudden-death extra hole, the par four, 369-yard 15th.

"I feel that much of a letdown in the playoff," said Geiberger, who now has won $106,545—the first time in his 16-year career that he's gone over the $100,000 mark—through the first four months of the year.

"I hit a perfect putt on 15 but so did Al," sighed Player, who flew back to South Africa after this event. "The difference was hit went in and mine didn't."

A HAPPY AL GEIBERGER

Nick, Miller Reject Million Dollar Match

CARLSBAD, Calif. (UPI) — Jack Nicklaus and Johnny Miller this weekend both rejected a chance at making $1 million by playing each other in a winner-take-all golf match.

The confrontation between the two golfers, who are the top two money winners on the PGA tour, was suggested by Sidney Gathrid of Caesar's Palace in Las Vegas, Nev.

Nicklaus and Miller both turned down the match idea the day Jimmy Connors defeated John Newcombe at the hotel-casino in a tennis match that could bring well over $1 million to the principals.

"It's wrong for the game," said Nicklaus. "I will not be a party to it."

Miller also rejected the offer.

"Not for $10 million. It gimmicks up the game," said Miller, the tour's first $200,000 money-winner in a single year.

Both turned in a poor showing at the $200,000 MONY Tournament of Champions this weekend, with Nicklaus picking up $5,945 for a tie for ninth and Miller $4,413 five spots back.

"I spoke to one of the networks and they are enormously interested," Gathrid said. "Head-to-head competition attracts the most attention ... It would be the Golden Bear against the Golden Boy."

Nicklaus said he has been approached on eight different occasions with similar offers, three of which have been for $1 million.

"Obviously the offer of so much money is tempting," he said, "But I am not receptive to such proposals. It is killing tennis and it would be bad for golf. We have an obligation to sponsors on the tour. Why should someone else profit? If the sponsors and Tournament Players Division were involved, I might be receptive."

FIREMAN'S BODY LIES IN WRECKAGE

Four Dead in Prix Mishap

BARCELONA, Spain (UPI) — For five minutes after Rolf Stommelen's car crashed into a group of spectators, the Spanish Grand Prix went on.

The din of the formula I race cars flashing by drowned out cries for help from the injured, lying among the debris of the white Embassy Hill car.

The accident Sunday at Barcelona's hilly, twisting Montjuich track was the first fatal formula I smashup this year. It left four persons dead and 13 injured. Stommelen, 30, of West Germany, was among those seriously hurt.

Spanish television had a crew in the turns after the main straight but it could not show its viewers the aftermath of the accident. The crash cut the camera cable and seriously injured one of the crew, Sergio Gil.

Also among the dead and injured were photographers and journalists who were working close to the track.

Stommelen was leading the race in the 26th lap when the mishap occurred. Three laps later, race officials ordered the checkered flag to end the race.

The leader at that point, West German Jochen Mass, driving a Texaco Marlboro, was declared the winner. Belgian Jackie Ickx, in a Shadow, took second.

Since the competition was not completed, the points counting towards the world drivers championship were worth only half their normal value.

And Brazilian Emerson Fittipaldi retained his lead in the championship with 15 points. His countryman, Carlos Pace, held on to second with 12.

Fittipaldi did not participate in the race because he said the Montjuich circuit was unsafe. The other racers balked for a day and a half at taking practice runs.

"This is just what I feared would happen," Fittipaldi said when he heard of the accident. "I decided not to take part because my life is more important than money."

The Barcelona track and the Monaco circuit are the last two sites where formula I races are run are city streets.

Looking towards the next race in Monaco, Fittipaldi said "The security at Monte Carlo is very good. The track is more dangerous than some other circuits but the drivers are willing to take that risk."

Spanish race organizers said Sunday's crash was caused by Stommelen's aileron flying off and that it had nothing to do with lack of security.

The worst accident involving a race-car and spectators occurred in 1955 at Le Mans when the car of Pierre Levegh went into the main grandstand at 180 miles per hour, killing 86 and injuring more than 100.

Rik Had to Scramble

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — Five-year PGA veteran Rik Massengale won his first tour victory Sunday, capturing the Tallahassee Open with a 14-under-par 274, but had to scramble all the way home to do it.

Massengale was seriously challenged in the final round by hometown favorite Bert Yancey, who helped found the tournament, and by rookie Spike Kelley and Ralph Johnston.

Massengale said he wasn't worried about the charge of Yancey, Johnston and Kelley as much as he was about the way he played.

"I hit the ball super the first three rounds, but I hit it badly today," the San Antonio, Tex., native said. "I was using a three wood off the tee just to keep it in play."

"I sure am glad I played with Bert today, because it kept me on my toes as I was seeing what he was doing. I wasn't too worried about it, though. I figured if I win it's great and if I didn't it wouldn't be the end of the world."

Massengale fired a final round even-par 72 over the 7,000-yard Killdeer Golf and Country Club course, and took home $12,000 for the win.

Even though none of the big names played in this $60,000 event—almost all of them were at the Tournament of Champions and the rest of them were at home—a victory here counts just as much as a win anywhere else. It earns a year's exemption from Monday qualifying and spots in the 1976 Masters and Tournament of Champions.

Yancey had a final round 69 and took the lead briefly, by one stroke, at the 12th hole.

But with almost everyone in the gallery pulling for Yancey, the charge fell apart at 15. He pushed his tee shot to the right and wound up 60 yards short of the green in two, then missed an 18-foot par putt. Massengale parred to tie.

Then Yancey put his tee shot in the rough on the par-five 17th, his second shot hit a tree and his third caught a bunker. He ended up with a bogey while Massengale made a birdie for the final two-stroke edge.

Both players birdied 18.

Kelley, a rookie who had made the cut only once before this season and had won a total of only $343 before this tournament, wound up in a tie with Yancey for second place, shooting a 68 for a 276 total. Kelley's win was worth $5,500, almost as much as he won in all of 1974.

Johnston shot a final round 72 to finish at 278, a stroke ahead of New Zealander Bob Charles.

It's Haynie In Playoff

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UPI) — In the constant battle between experience and youth, make another mark in the experience column.

On this occasion, the role of experience was filled by Sandra Haynie, who for the third straight year won the Ladies Professional Golf Association's tour stop in her native Fort Worth — the $45,000 Charity Classic.

Miss Haynie, who won $6,400 for her 37th career tour triumph, had to fight off 19-year-old Amy Alcott over four holes of a sudden death playoff to win.

"I thought the pressure would get to her," Miss Haynie admitted. "I thought I had a little advantage. But she showed great fortitude. I thought she had won it on the first hole."

The playoff was a three-way battle to start between Miss Haynie, Miss Alcott and Judy Rankin, all of whom finished with 1-under-par 212 for three rounds over the wind-swept Woodhaven Country Club course. Miss Alcott fired a 31 over the back nine which included an 18-foot birdie putt at No. 18 to force her way into the playoff.

But Mrs. Rankin exited on the first extra hole where she three-putted.

BEAUTY IN A PENSIVE MOOD

The Many Faces of Marilyn Scott ... Model, Teacher and Traveler

By Dorothy A. Narel

First it was for Vogue in London where for eight months she did a fashion feature and then off to Venezuela for another eight months doing TV commercials. This is only a smattering of the type of life photographic model MARILYNN SCOTT has enjoyed.

Brought to our attention by Fashiontime Models of Kingston, Marilyn has been residing in the Woodstock area since 1973 where she says she is enjoying "country living." After a glittering career, meeting people, working in various parts of the world, she says, "... you can make monetary achievements but you must develop an inner peace for yourself."

LIFE got the impression this top photographic model is doing exactly what she wants to do — listen to herself and "quiet the mind a little."

Marilynn looks at modeling as a wonderful opportunity to travel and learn about people and their cultures.

It was in France, however, where she spent a good deal of her time. For two years, beginning in 1967, she was an English teacher in an American Army based school. French photographers talked about modeling when they met her and Marilyn says: "the idea intrigued me."

Fashions and modeling though were always in Marilyn's background. They always seemed to be interlaced in whatever she did. During college days she was selected as one of the 10 Best Dressed Girls at the University of Wisconsin and was featured in Glamour Magazine.

But Marilyn Scott, while looking at modeling as a career on the one hand was ahead of the game for she was prepared in a basic career as well as to carry her over the "unemployed" periods. She obtained her BA in English and a Masters in Speech Therapy. In Paris, France, she worked with retarded children. When she made her decision to enter modeling, her teaching ceased and the next step was to put together a portfolio.

"It seemed like I had a 'look' and a style and could be successful at this new career — particularly being American. That was a good selling point. I had studied French in college and I had really become part of the area. I enjoyed modeling."

Some of her assignments took her, for example, to Malta for GOOD HOUSEKEEPING, to Nice for a publication out of London, England. Marilyn Scott has been featured in ads carried in British women's magazines, fashion shots published in Vogue Magazine in London and traveled to Portugal to shoot car commercials.

"It was terrific seeing the various cultures, getting back out of the main cities to see how people really lived." She found the same interesting experiences working in Italy on a fashion catalog and doing hair style ads in France.

About photographers, she says: "When you work with really good photographers — it is great."

Marilynn says she was married at one time, has no children, and her family lives in California. A brother resides in New York City. She has taught speech therapy in California and was "a strict school 'marm'." She also taught special education classes in Santa Rosa, Calif.

Through friends in Woodstock she decided to relocate here and use this area as a base for her modeling. She told LIFE she even spent a summer here working a farm with another girl. They sold the vegetables and with the proceeds were able to vacation abroad.

About modeling she says: "It's a great experience for gaining a certain amount of savoir faire. You gain knowledge about yourself but in terms of income if anyone thinks they can exist comfortably on just modeling they will be disappointed. It is not easy. You have to have a lot of money with which to start and there are many weeks you will find yourself without a job."

"The pay is excellent when you make it but not easy when you are just starting out. You have to fall back on your talents and develop your own potentials in other areas. It is the same with acting and music. For me, modeling was fun."

Another important factor Marilyn pointed out was that as a model "you are really in an individual business. You must manage that business yourself, take care of your own accounts and finances."

The fairly new Woodstock resident does see modeling as a good training base for all girls. "It teaches you how to move, how to develop yourself, dress and gain good grooming tips."

In mentioning good grooming, Marilyn told LIFE she found the French women "incredible." She stated they have much less with which to work but they stick to basic clothes. About American women she says:

"Our American women are more individual — more free. Really, in fashions and leadership they are looked up to but American women don't really look at themselves. They are too quick to take to an immediate fashion trend. They should look at themselves more."

"You would never see a French woman going out to the store with curlers in her hair. And every woman should develop her own individual style. It is part of gaining self-knowledge."

Her concluding thought for American women — "... pay more attention to yourself and you'll think a lot more of yourself as an individual."

AFS Month to Be Observed in May

"AFS Month" will be celebrated throughout the Mid-Hudson Valley during May, according to Mrs. Sally Pulver, area representative, who resides in Red Hook.

AFS (American Field Service) International Scholarships, is a world-wide organization which works to promote understanding and peace through an interchange of living and learning experiences.

There are currently nine AFS Chapters in the valley — Kingston, Millbrook, New Paltz, Ontario, Pine Plains, Poughkeepsie, Red Hook, Rhinebeck and Spackenkill.

This year there are nine foreign students living in this area — hailing from Kenya, Morocco, Austria, Australia, Switzerland, Guatemala, Belgium, Ecuador and the United Kingdom. Each chapter also participates in the American Abroad Program.

Through the AFS, young people ranging in age from 16 through 19, participate in the scholarship program which operates in more than 60 countries. Outstanding young men and women are brought to the U.S. to live as members of American families. American students are sent overseas on comparable programs. Multi-national programs, not involving the U.S., also are operated.

The results of this type of program are that students return to their homes with lasting ties to people of other nations, with increased appreciation of their own national life, with deeper understanding of world problems and the needs of others, with fluency in another language, and with greater self-awareness fitting them for roles of leadership in a time of change and challenge.

AFS is the largest organization of its kind in the world, each year bringing over 2,500 students to the United States and sending more than 2,200 American students abroad.

During May many local Chapters will hold fund-raising events to help finance their programs. Each Chapter must raise approximately $1,700 each year to provide Scholarship monies for those participating from their community.

AFS is a nonsectarian, non-political organization. Its programs are operated throughout the world principally by volunteers.

In the U.S., there are more than 300 field representatives, about 2,700 Chapters with 30,000 members. Overseas, AFS works with 700 local committees on six continents with membership in the thousands.

Further information on the AFS Program may be obtained by contacting Mrs. Sally Pulver, Pin Oak Drive, Red Hook, N.Y. 12571.

TACY EDWARDS

HVP Concert May 5 Promises To Be Nostalgic

The May 5 concert of the Hudson Valley Philharmonic at the Community Theater should prove to be a delightful one as well as nostalgic.

The delightful part of the concert will be the appearance of Tacy Edwards, featured soloist with the Philharmonic who will play the Flute Concerto by Ibert.

Ms. Edwards is finishing her second year as principal flutist with the Hudson Valley Philharmonic. A graduate of the University of Kansas, she began her professional career with the Kansas City Philharmonic Orchestra and later played with the American Wind Symphony Orchestra in Pittsburgh.

She served on the faculty of the Midwestern Music and Art Camp as a flute instructor before moving to New York to pursue her own flute studies. She was a student of Claude Monteux and is presently studying with Harold Bennett of the Manhattan School of Music.

In addition to playing with the Hudson Valley Philharmonic, Tacy Edwards also is a member of the Hadyn Festival Orchestra, as well as teaching many private flute students in this area. Her husband, Darrell Edwards, plays principal trumpet with the Philharmonic and is the personnel manager of the orchestra.

Tempered with this delightful part of the program will be the nostalgic portion.

The May 5 concert will be the final appearance of Claude Monteux as conductor of the Philharmonic.

Mr. Monteux has served as conductor for the past 15 years, developing the Philharmonic into an award-winning orchestra.

The May 5 concert also will have Beethoven's 5th Symphony and Tchaikovsky's Romeo and Juliet Overture on its program.

Subscribers will have the opportunity on this date to submit their re-subscription for next season's series.

CLAUDE MONTEUX

Mrs. Richard Larson (L), Mrs. Nicholas Radakovich and Mrs. Francis R. Koenig display the antique silver fruit service and storage chest to be awarded during the annual Benedictine Hospital Auxiliary luncheon-fashion show Wednesday, May 7, at Williams Lake Hotel. A $25 Savings Bond also will be part of the awards. The program includes luncheon at 12:45, preceded by a cocktail hour at noon followed by fashions shown by Ita Cortale who has shops in Kingston and Margaretville. Mrs. James Gilpatric and Mrs. Koenig are co-chairmen with Mrs. Radakovich in charge of the special events program. All Auxiliary members and their guests are invited. Reservations may be made with Mrs. Larson and Mrs. Bernard Farrell. Other key workers include Mrs. John McCordle and Mrs. Francis Tucker. (Freeman photo)

DEAR ABBY: I read in the newspaper that a group of people in Milwaukee, Wisconsin organized a "Free the Apes" movement, also known as "The Ape Liberation Movement."

They want to take all the apes, monkeys and gorillas out of the zoos and cages, and put them to work in factories and on farms. They claim that monkeys can be trained to handle certain jobs as well as people — like picking berries or cotton and working on assembly lines. They could even be trained to tend bar. (No complicated mixed drinks — mostly just pouring beer.)

Abby, with so many people out of work, I think it's a crime to consider putting monkeys to work instead of people.

What is your opinion? UNEMPLOYED IN W. VA.

DEAR UN: Don't worry. Even though monkeys would be glad to work for peanuts, until they can read, write and vote, the labor unions will see to it that people get preference.

DEAR ABBY: I've never written to you before, but there was a letter in your column that really threw me. It was from "Bone Tired," the young mother who wasn't able to get all dolled up in the morning because she's been up half the night with a sick baby. And when she served her husband his breakfast in her bathrobe, he gave her the dickens because he likes to see his wife all prettied up at breakfast.

Now I've heard everything! I'm a working woman myself, and I say, "Let the guy make his own breakfast!"

Furthermore, if he expects to look at Elizabeth Taylor in the morning, his wife should lay out a magazine with the food. I'll bet she never made Richard Burton breakfast!

LINDA
DEAR LINDA: Probably not. Do you suppose if she had, they'd still be together?

DEAR ABBY: I am writing this letter in hopes that it will help some other drinking housewife who won't admit that she has a problem.

For the past seven years, I was slowly becoming an alcoholic, and I wouldn't face it. I gave myself all the possible excuses: The kids were getting on my nerves; my husband worked too many hours; I needed a few drinks to "relax" me in the evening.

I kept the house neat and managed to take care of the kids long enough to get them into bed, but then Mommy would pass out with a "head-ache."

Finally, my husband gave me a choice, The bottle or my family.

First I went to a mental-health clinic. They referred me to Alcoholics Anonymous. It was a big step to admit that, at 28 years of age, I was an alcoholic. It was painful to realize how much it affected the lives of the people I loved the most.

They say that most alcoholics don't go for help until they reach rock bottom and have lost their jobs, families and homes. I was lucky. I didn't have to fall that far.

I haven't quite made it yet. But I am trying with all the strength I have to stay away from alcohol just one day at a time. I don't even mind telling people I can't drink. It seems that everyone knew it long before I did.

D. IN NEW BRITAIN, CONN.

DEAR D.: Thanks for an inspirational letter. I think you're going to make it!

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Guarantee Better Than Guess

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Oswald: "If you could guess right all the time, you wouldn't have to do anything else well to be a winner. Experts do a lot of successful guessing, but when possible they try to substitute certainty for guesswork."

Jim: "I'm looking at the hand you are about to bring up. I suppose South won the first trick with the ten of hearts and led a diamond."

Oswald: "He certainly did but only after a lot of agonizing. When dummy's queen held the trick he relaxed, remarked, 'I sure played the right suit' and went happily about the business of winning game and rubber."

Jim: "South's guess had some merit. If he had to lead a spade or diamond, the diamond was correct. There was a 68 percent chance that the suit would break 3-2. If it did, it wouldn't really matter who had which ace, since three tricks in diamonds would be enough to guarantee success of the three notrump contract."

Oswald: "However, there was no need for any guess at all. Instead of studying

Kissinger and Isolation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Isolationism was respectable before World War II, when many people wanted to hide behind "Fortress America" and recalled George Washington's caution against "entangling alliances."

President Franklin D. Roosevelt used the word isolationists as a derogatory label to attack people who opposed rearming, aiding the nations fighting Germany and Japan. President Harry S. Truman used it to criticize opponents of the Marshall Plan. President Lyndon B. Johnson threw the word at opponents of U.S. involvement in Vietnam.

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger used it Saturday at a Lions' Club meeting.

"The United States cannot accept the counsel of those who now assert a modern version of isolationism ... and who assert that it is American engagements that cause conflicts," he said. "Quite the contrary is true."

Sen. Barry M. Goldwater, R-Ariz., said Sunday, "I think we've been in a growing period of isolation since about 1960, and I think it's still growing."

"And I hate to see it, because I'm reminded precisely of the days of 1920 and 1930 when no one thought we were ever going to war again. And we're actually in worse shape internationally now than we were then."

It came up as the nation's leaders discussed what if other allies came under pressure from the Communists elsewhere in the world.

"The domino theory is very real to the people of South Korea and the people of Thailand. The Philippines, Taiwan," said Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa. "It is a real theory to them."

"What happens if another domino starts to fall? I can only tell you that I think we ought to continue our support for South Korea as we have been doing and we ought to make it very clear that we are supporting them."

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, disagreed.

"I have never believed in the domino theory," he said. "I think that to believe in it you must believe that all governments are alike, like so many dominoes, and when one falls, that starts the falling process all the way down the line."

"It seems to me the lesson we should learn from this experience is that governments fall depending upon internal conditions far more than external forces and that though it is possible to assist governments through military aid programs, it is not possible for the United States to manage the politics of Asia."

James Chen, ambassador from Taiwan to the United States, is confident the collapse of Cambodia and Vietnam will not change the situation in the Republic of China. "The United States has a fine record of standing by its commitments in its history and we do not think that ours will be the first exception to that rule."

Chen appeared on UPI's Washington Window. Goldwater appeared on CBS' "Face the Nation," and Church and Scott on ABC's "Issues and Answers."

Congress to Give Ford Evacuation Authority

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress is expected this week to give President Ford the authority he wants to use U.S. combat troops in evacuating Americans and South Vietnamese from Saigon.

The Senate already has approved a bill to authorize $177 million for evacuation costs and $150 million for Vietnamese refugee relief. The House is set to take a final vote Tuesday, sending the bill to the White House for the President's signature.

The measure's key provision would authorize troops, if necessary, to evacuate Americans and such South Vietnamese as can be accommodated. Preference is given to those who run a "high risk" of Communist reprisal for having associated with the United States.

Congress believes it would keep U.S. troops from actual fighting since Ford would have to tell Congress just how they are being used. Congress would keep the right to disapprove the use and order the troops out of Vietnam.

Although the House took 15 consecutive hours to pass its version of the bill, the compromise agreement is expected to win easy approval.

The only other major business before Congress this week is adoption of proposed federal spending limits for the fiscal year that starts July 1.

Acting under a 1974 law, Congress will for the first time attempt to draft a budget of its own.

The Senate starts work Tuesday on a budget resolution which recommends spending held to $365 billion, $11.9 billion more than Ford has proposed and carrying a $69.6 billion deficit. The House opens its budget debate Wednesday on a resolution to propose a limit of $368.2 billion, $15.1 billion more than Ford's budget with a deficit of $73.2 billion.

The President said he would "draw the line" at anything over 160 million.

The budget exercise is in the form of guidelines for the Congress in the 1976 fiscal year, but starting next year, when the fiscal 1977 budget is up, any spending limit finally determined by the House and Senate would be mandatory.

Sihanouk Ending Five Years of Exile

By United Press International

Prince Norodom Sihanouk, nominal head of Cambodia's new Khmer Rouge government, is expected to end five years of exile in Peking and return to Cambodia for the burial of his mother.

The Yugoslav news agency Tanjug reported the death Sunday of Queen Kossamak Nearirat, 72, in the Chinese capital.

Queen Kossamak died of cancer. Her long illness had prevented Sihanouk from leaving Peking for Cambodia after the fall of Phnom Penh to the Communist-led Khmer Rouge on April 17.

The agency said last week Sihanouk planned to have the body cremated in Peking, then fly the ashes to Angkor in northwestern Cambodia for burial.

Tanjung gave no indication when Sihanouk might leave for Phnom Penh.

At the queen's bedside when she died were Sihanouk, his wife Princess Monique and Pen Nouth, premier of the new Cambodian Government of National Union.

The queen, whose greatest interest was classical dance, remained in Phnom Penh following the 1970 coup which ousted her son. She was allowed to join Sihanouk in Peking in 1973.

In a report monitored in Hong Kong, Peking's New China News Agency said Sunday the Cambodian people held a three-day celebration April 24-26 to mark the Khmer Rouge takeover.

The agency said celebrations were held in "various regions, villages and cities, with inhabitants and fighters joyously participating in meetings and performances in an atmosphere of joy and cordiality."

Reports from Cambodia have been sketchy since the April 17 Khmer Rouge takeover. The new government has not disclosed the fate of several hundred foreigners, including a handful of Americans, who took refuge in the French embassy in Phnom Penh.

Several thousand Cambodian civilians and soldiers fled into Thailand and Malaysia after the defeat of the government of Marshal Lon Nol, which had run the country since the March 18, 1970, coup that deposed Sihanouk.

In Kuala Lumpur, the Malaysian government said Sunday it will not expel Cambodian refugees now in the country until the problem had been discussed with the new Cambodian government.

Acting Prime Minister Inche Ghafar Baba also said the Malaysian charge d'affaires in Phnom Penh, Inche Ismail Ambia, had been told to reopen the mission, which was closed down when the capital came under rebel attack.

Portuguese Moderates Win

LISBON (UPI) — The left-wing military regime has decided to go ahead with plans to turn Portugal into a "revolutionary" socialist state despite the election victory of two moderate parties.

Nearly complete returns from the voting Friday for a 247-member constituent assembly gave the Socialist and Popular Democratic parties a combined total of 64 percent of the vote.

The influential Communists, who hold key cabinet posts, finished a poor third in the election with only 12.5 percent of the ballots cast.

More than 90 percent of the registered voters went to the polls to elect a constituent assembly to draft a new Portuguese constitution.

The voting, the country's first free election in half a century, came exactly one year after a military coup ended five decades of rightist dictatorship.

Premier Vasco Goncalves said in an interview published Sunday in the newspaper O Seculo that the results would not affect the government's programs or the makeup of the cabinet.

"The constituent assembly is one thing, the provisional government and the continuation and development of the revolution are another," he said. "The election results will have no decisive influence on the Portuguese revolutionary process."

Information Minister Jorge Jesusino Correia told a news conference Saturday the results would give new impetus to government efforts to transform Portugal into a socialist state leaning toward nonalignment in foreign affairs.

The Socialists, who emerged as the nation's biggest party with 37.8 percent of the vote, celebrated in noisy, horn-blasting motorcades through the streets of Lisbon until early Sunday.

The Socialists, acknowledging that the Communists remain a major influence in the government, suggested a possible Socialist-Communist alliance.

"We are a majority with the Communists and even a bigger majority with the Popular Democrats now," Socialist leader Mario Soares said.

"We consider the Communists essential to democracy in this country."

But there was no immediate response from the Communists, who blamed their poor showing on threats of violence.
